Hey folks, all welcome to a study visit at Unicorn in Nov and please spread the word! Thanks

Want to grow a grocery co-operative? Come along to a free study day this November at Unicorn. Run as a workers co-operative, we are keen to do what we can to support the establishment and growth of like-minded co-ops and social enterprises, who seek to provide affordable, wholesome, well-sourced food to their local communities.

Whether you're looking to start-up, scale up, or simply spend time with a like-minded business, come and join us for a day covering all the key aspects of how we operate. The study visit will include a tour of the shop and site plus meetings with co-op members involved in buying, HR, marketing and co-op structure.

Tuesday 8th November, 10 - 3.

Paul Gosling

Radical economist Paul Mason's book, PostCapitalism, identifies the disruption to the system from globalisation and new technology – and argues that this could pave the way for a co-operative future.

Education, education, education: Creating a future of co-operative education

Anthony Murray

...co-operatives have been (formally) shouting about education since the Rochdale Pioneers. The promotion of education, coupled with the implementation of training and publication of information brings a wealth of importance to Principle 5.
